Barking and Dagenham libraries have played a key role over many years in helping to improve the quality of life of local people and supporting them to reach their full potential.

All councils have a duty to provide a 'comprehensive and efficient service', which means that people who live, work or study in Barking and Dagenham should have access free of charge to borrow or refer to books and other printed material. However, our libraries do much, much more than this.

We think that our libraries are at the heart of our community. Our libraries help people get on line and do research on the internet. We support people to look for jobs and help them find out about other services that the council and its partners provide. Also children and adults use our libraries as safe and well equipped places for quiet study and to learn new skills. We also run a wide range of events and activities for families and people of all ages which support community cohesion.

Some of our libraries are truly exceptional: The Barking Learning Centre is an award winning facility in the heart of Barking and is the 16th busiest library in the country¹. The Dagenham library on the Heathway is another modern library which opened in October 2010 and is attracting over 35,000 visitors a month.

We want to build on the good work that libraries are already doing by developing a service that better meets the needs of all of our residents and supports the delivery of the vision set out in the Community Strategy to "encourage growth and unlock the potential of Barking and Dagenham and its residents", and which has five priorities:

1. Ensure every child is valued so that they can succeed
2. Reduce crime and the fear of crime
3. Improve health and wellbeing through all stages of life
4. Creating thriving communities by maintaining and investing in high quality homes
5. Maximise growth opportunities and increase the income of borough residents

Above all else, we want to get more reading and improving their skills so that they can better reach their potential and lead more fulfilled lives.

This strategy sets out how we plan to achieve this.

Councillor Liam Smith
Leader of the Council
Barking and Dagenham Council

Introduction

This strategy has been prepared because we want to develop a library service that is more efficient and effective and better meets the current and emerging needs of our residents.

Over the last couple of years our main focus has been on “getting the house in order” and along with all other council services we have had to find significant savings to bridge the funding gap now facing local government.

We have restructured the libraries staffing arrangements and reviewed and amended library opening hours. Councillors have also had to take the difficult decision to close libraries. They are now looking at alternative delivery methods for other libraries, to maintain the service across the whole community. This will minimise the impact of budget reductions on users.

We are now looking to the future. The strategy aims to increase the use of libraries by residents, making them aware of the services on offer, increase partnerships and develop the joy and benefit of reading amongst local residents.

The strategy has been developed after consultation with the public and staff in Barking and Dagenham. It recommends areas to focus on based on what should be the key priorities for the next few years to support the provision of a high-quality, modern, cost-effective and responsive library service for the residents of the borough.

Dagenham Library

The purpose of the Library Strategy is to provide a shared vision and a framework for the delivery and promotion of Library Services over the next 3 years.

The key services outcomes from the delivery of this strategy in 2016 (what Library Services will directly achieve) will be:

- ✓ 23% of residents will be regular users of libraries (up by 8%)
- ✓ Visits increase by 10% to 1.4m
- ✓ A core offer is presented at all libraries in a clear and consistent way (books, internet access, study space and information)
- ✓ An effective marketing plan will have been implemented so that more residents know about and are using the library service
- ✓ A better range of new online services will be available
- ✓ More community involvement, more events, more fun
- ✓ An effective reading partnership will have been established that encourages different agencies across the Borough to work together to achieve more than they would working on their own
- ✓ An annual festival will be presented featuring internationally renowned and more local authors, which will showcase the work of our libraries and encourage people of all ages to take up reading and creative writing
- ✓ Stock will better reflect the public's interest and needs

In collaboration with partners and other providers of cultural services, Library Services will achieve:

- ✓ A place where local people come together to make it a better place
- ✓ Improve the effectiveness of the Home Library Service so that more residents who find it difficult to get out and about are able to socialise and visit our libraries
- ✓ Develop Valence Library as a thriving centre for older people
- ✓ Provide a place during school holidays where there are more things for children and young people to do

These outcomes link directly to the priorities set out in the Community Strategy and Council's Corporate Plan:

- Ensure every child is valued so that they can succeed;
- Reduce crime and the fear of crime;
- Improve the health and wellbeing through all stages of life;
- Maximise growth opportunities and increase the household income of Borough residents.

Why libraries are important

4

Libraries are a highly visible symbol of community service provision, much valued by residents.

They contribute to a long list of strategic priorities, such as economic development, the skills agenda, health and wellbeing. The library service is also ideally suited to work in partnership with others to deliver these priorities.

Libraries are extremely valuable assets, not only as community hubs and access points, but also as the providers of information, materials, digital services and a highly skilled workforce.

Libraries are places where everyone can mix freely and come together; they offer a safe and welcoming community space.

They hold enormous stocks of material with a wide range of books, DVDs, CDs and public internet access.

As well as lending books, they offer a wide range of services, including operating as community centres for formal and informal learning for all ages.

Traditionally libraries have always been places that people go to for information, to socialise and to learn. They have always had an ability to engage with the community, but they are also community hubs because they are well placed to meet the constantly changing requirements, goals, and challenges of their community.

1. Libraries provide a meeting point, where the community are welcomed, entertained and engaged in a safe environment.
2. They bring people from all walks of life together under one roof.
3. They provide events, training and opportunities for the community to take part in formal and informal learning.
4. They are often at the heart of local communities, whether within the local shops or alongside a range of other local services.
5. They are safe venues, with the majority of the facilities and services free to use or at a very low cost.
6. They are warm, welcoming and open for all, providing a place to browse at leisure.
7. They are friendly places where information requirements are met in a helpful and accessible manner.
8. They offer opportunities for informal learning and may be the first steps towards signing up to more formal learning.
9. They provide study spaces, helpful staff and resources for students.
10. They provide materials for different age ranges, tastes and abilities.
11. They have a wide-ranging and interesting stock with access to an ever increasing variety of materials.
12. Increasingly libraries share venues with other community facilities, for example one stop shops, doctors' surgeries and children's centres. Allowing residents to participate with library services while accessing other services.

The population of Barking and Dagenham is changing

- The borough is expected to see one of the highest growths in population in the country, with a high proportion of the growth being accounted for by pre-school and school age children.
- The population of the borough has increased by 22,000 between the 2001 and 2011 Census which is a 13.4% increase in the boroughs population.
- There has been almost a 50% growth in 0-4 year olds. This is the highest growth for this age group of any local authority in England and Wales.
- The borough has the highest population percentage of those aged 0 to 19 at 31% in England and Wales.
- The over 60 population accounts for one of the smallest percentages of population in England and Wales.
- There has been a 20% decrease in the 65+ age group in the borough, which is the biggest decrease in London. However, growth in the over 85's will be within the top 10 highest in London by 2021.

Population Projections

- The borough's population is projected to rise to 183,300 in 2010 to 206,600 by 2016 and 224,900 by 2021, the third highest population increase among London Boroughs. (ONS Sub National Projections 2010).

The Ethnic Diversity of the borough's population is also changing

- In 2001 the percentage of the White British/Irish population in the borough was 82.5%: This has dropped to 50.4% in 2011.
- Most other ethnic groups have risen in both number and percentage between 2001 and 2012. This is particular significant for Black: African, Asian and White: Other Groups.

Family fun day

Barking and Dagenham is also among the most deprived boroughs in the country based on the Index of Multiple Deprivation

- The borough is ranked 7th within London out of 33 (where 1st is the most deprived).
- Life expectancy in the borough is two years below that of the London average for men and women, with average life expectancy for men in Barking and Dagenham 77 years and for women 81 years. (ONS 2011)

Overall Barking and Dagenham's population has a low level of skills when compared to other London boroughs

- 13.8% of working age residents in Barking and Dagenham have no qualifications. This is higher than the London average of 9.3%. (Annual population survey Jan - December 2011).
- 27% of the borough's population has a degree level qualification or equivalent, which is much lower than the London average of 45%. (Annual Population Survey Jan-Dec 2011)
- Levels of adult basic skills are very low but are improving.

Equality and Diversity

It is proposed that the core offer for the service will focus on books, information, internet access, and study space.

One of the key principles of the strategy will be to ensure that local libraries are at the heart of the community and reflect its demographics and any particular need. The strategy will need to be flexible enough to respond to changes in the demographic makeup of the Borough and to target resources to better meet current and emerging needs.

The starting point for the Borough's libraries is a strong one in terms of accessibility. The library service is currently provided in locations that are convenient for residents and physically accessible. The book stock is accessible to people of all ages and reading abilities and 'talking' books are provided as well as books in large print and different community languages. The services provided are free or modestly priced and usage levels and customer satisfaction are high:

- Fewer than 1,000 of the Borough's residents live more than 1 mile away or further than 20 minutes travel time by public transport to a library. This takes into account current library provision in the neighbouring boroughs of Havering and Redbridge.
- Usage levels in Barking and Dagenham are the highest out of all of the 16 London council library services in the Borough's benchmarking group and customer satisfaction high.
- It is considered that there is a good range of service provision for children, adults and older people with many local schools buying into the School's Library Service.
- The service provides free access to books, study space, information, events and activities, and social meeting space. A modest charge was introduced for internet use in 2012 but the impact of this was mitigated by maintaining free use for children and young people and older people.
- There is also a Home Library Service which delivers books to the homes of people who cannot travel to the library. A groundbreaking extension to this service is the Home from Home project run in partnership with the Council's transport section. Residents are transported into libraries on a monthly basis to choose books themselves, socialise and access various activities and wider Council services.

The equalities impact assessment for the library service indicates that women, older people and children and young people would be particularly affected by any reduction to the current level of library provision across the Borough.

None of the actions outlined in the strategy are expected to see a reduction in the geographic spread of the service provided and that the core offer will be maintained. The service will continue to improve literacy levels in the Borough through reading schemes and reading groups and by participating in national campaigns and media opportunities. Libraries will continue to contribute to improving educational attainment by providing focussed activities for under 5's and families to encourage use before and after school. This will be supported by a comprehensive school holiday events and activities offer.

However, it is recognised that the quality of service that can be provided by a community managed or volunteer led service is unlikely to be as consistently good as that provided by a wholly Council managed service. Steps will be taken to minimise any adverse impact from different management arrangements including the Council retaining responsibility for sourcing and providing book stock, IT support including self-service terminals, specialist support for activities and events, and support for recruitment and training of volunteers.

Winners of the Fairchild Award 2013

As well as driving improvements in the library service, the strategy will inform the budget setting process of the Council and its partners. It will also help to provide a compelling strategic rationale to support external funding bids for new projects, programmes and facilities.

However, it must be recognised that these are very difficult times for local government and that Council spending on libraries will reduce during the life of this strategy. This stark reality has directly shaped the development of the strategy improvement action plan.

It also means that some tough decisions are being made about the level of service the Council can afford to provide. Whilst every effort is being made to try to ensure that price doesn't become a barrier to participation, one of the ways the Council is seeking to balance its books is by raising more income from its facilities and services.

A cornerstone of the strategy is the need to improve efficiency and effectiveness to deliver the same quality and range of services for less money, or to deliver more for the same level of expenditure. There will also be a continued focus over the life of the strategy and beyond to secure funding from other sources working in partnership with local, sub-regional and national agencies.

To deliver the programme of activities set out in the strategy, existing funding streams will need to be directed toward the priorities identified. This will be supplemented by external funding sources. Bidding for, and securing external funding, will be a key strand of delivering this strategy if all of the actions are to be achieved.

There also needs to be the consideration of a range of management models including asset transfer of libraries as well as services being delivered by the voluntary, private or trust sectors. These could provide a more effective way of maximising available resources in order to release funds for the continued development of library provision in these financially constrained times.

The purpose of this Strategy

The purpose of the strategy is to provide the highest quality, affordable and accessible library service for all those living, working and studying in Barking and Dagenham in order to improve literacy levels, enrich people's lives and enable them to achieve their full potential.

In order to achieve this, we have identified seven key priorities for improvement, based on an analysis of the local context and consultation undertaken.

1. Marketing – Tell people about it
2. Community engagement and collaboration
3. Improving our buildings
4. Staff and volunteers
5. Stock and reader development
6. Technology and innovation
7. Financial sustainability

Barking Learning Centre

The clearest messages to emerge from the public consultation relate to communication. There is generally strong support for library services among the residents of Barking and Dagenham, even among those who do not currently use the services. But there is relatively little awareness of the scope and depth of the range of services on offer, even among those who do use them.

It is vital we let people know what a library offers and be realistic and clear, telling residents about this service based on their feedback. Good effective communications can lead to increased use, increased engagement with the service, and increased understanding of the offer and the potential of libraries.

A disciplined and consistent approach to marketing is essential to overcome the ongoing public comments about lack of awareness of services and the library offer. The service needs to invest more time and effort in marketing, especially using social media, to inform residents of the value of using libraries and what is on offer.

Priority Two: Community engagement and collaboration

A modern library service needs the support of partners and of the general public in order to thrive and grow. The review of good practice elsewhere demonstrates that the most successful services are those most open to the involvement of others in the planning, and design, as well as the delivery, of services.

A balance will need to be struck between being responsive to the priorities of local partners without surrendering the fundamental values and principles of library service provision. Several authorities have moved to a much more focused approach to working collaboratively with commissioning and more formal agreements between parties supporting a more structured approach.

It would be also beneficial for the library service to adopt a more strategic approach to community engagement across the whole service. A community engagement strategy, with effective marketing to back it up, would enable the service to widen its appeal to meet the needs of a more diverse section of Barking and Dagenham residents.

It is not necessarily possible, or desirable, to try to do the same things or provide exactly the same services at each library. Alongside a consistent and effective core offer (books, internet access, study space and information) the service should be shaped to meet the local needs of the service users in the catchment area for each library. It also needs to be recognised that there are some services for which people would be happy to travel further than their local library to access.

This reflects a key principle already expressed that we believe local libraries are at the heart of the community and should reflect its demographics and current and emerging needs,

Meanwhile, although the potential for new technology to transform the delivery of library services is as yet not fully understood, it is likely to have a growing impact during the life of this strategy on how buildings need to function – in terms of layout, presentation, staff spaces etc. and this also needs to be considered in any review of usage of buildings.

Critical to the success of any strategy are the skills and expertise of those delivering the service.

Both the public and staff themselves recognise that services evolve, especially those driven by new technologies and new ways of working. As a result, new skills may be needed to deliver the service effectively.

Managers in Barking and Dagenham are very aware of this, and are also interested in exploring how the roles of volunteers in supporting and delivering the service can be expanded and encouraged. This needs to be mutually beneficial to the service and in developing the skills and experience of local residents.

Stock provision in traditional formats (mainly print) and in new technology-driven ways constantly needs to be reviewed.

There is a general acceptance that the latter are “the way forward”, but nevertheless there is still, for now, a strong interest in reading and borrowing books.

In the Borough there is a clearly defined requirement on stock (printed and digital) to support study and self-improvement.

The Library Service needs to continue to consult with customers and staff on what they want and make the best use of available information supported by statistical evidence to meet these needs in the most cost-effective way.

The consultation process that informed the development of this strategy clearly showed an enthusiasm amongst many users, especially, and perhaps unsurprisingly, younger ones, for an increasing emphasis on using more technology in library services. E-books and other digital resources are already part of the service offer. In the future there will be a need to assess and introduce new offers and innovative developments as they emerge.

There is a strong willingness among staff and managers to meet these requirements, as demonstrated by the enthusiasm in the consultation workshops for a general move towards more technology and fewer books. This needs to be at a pace that suits the varied demands placed upon the service. As indicated above, the recent public consultation suggests that for the immediate future more traditional formats and services may continue to dominate demand.

That said, the service needs to take a strategic approach to the development of new services and to design and test the new offers that will enable it to respond to changing demands over the next few years. It is also important that as technology evolves and new services become possible, the infrastructure to support these is regularly updated to enable the library service to keep up to date with customers' expectations and requirements.

Priority Six: Technology and innovation

The service already has a track record of innovation. It has piloted a pioneering “Home from Home” service working with the borough’s transport section and the NHS to bring home restricted clients into libraries to participate in talks and events. More recently this has been expanded to include an increased range of engagement for this client group for example using online learning and reminiscence sessions with Eastside Community Heritage for a Memory Games project in the lead up to the London 2012 Olympics

An Older Peoples Zone has been developed at Valence library to provide resources and a venue for events for the Over 50’s. Traditionally libraries provide areas with stock and activities for children and young people, but not for older library users. The area at Valence library is home to the Home Library Service collection and has a range of materials, furniture and activities such as matinee film shows craft and IT sessions aimed at older users.

The Library Service is always looking at innovative and creative ways for achieving best value for the community in delivering its services. This includes considering a variety of different service delivery models and income generation plans.

The library service will look at options for the type of services that it delivers to the community. The service should also assess if there are services that it should stop delivering.

Often, there is a tendency for library services to cater for the whole community, and in these tough economic circumstances it may be appropriate to deliver a more targeted service to people who need the service.

Barking Learning Centre

The Library Service manages the Barking Learning Centre which is a centre piece of the town centre's regeneration. The Centre provides learning opportunities from basic skills through to further and higher education which are delivered by local education partners The University of East London and Barking and Dagenham College. The centre also houses the Central library for the Borough and a Council One Stop Shop facility. The centre has approximately 30 rooms, including a conference room with capacity for up to 120 people. The rooms are primarily used for delivering the courses but when these are not in use they are hired out to bring in income.

The service has recently sought to bring in additional partners to reduce the running cost of the building. Barking Job Shop has relocated to the building and currently there are negotiations with the Police to have a front counter reporting station at the BLC. The café has just been refurbished and opened in March 2013 as Relish@BLC. The council run café offers an opportunity for local residents with learning disabilities, to get experience in the hospitality sector

Spitalfields Music – partnership

Spitalfields Music based in Tower Hamlets, secured Arts Council funding and are working with Barking and Dagenham Libraries to deliver a 3 year touring programme of interactive musical sessions across the boroughs libraries. Each tour includes training for library staff in structuring story times and activities to make them more interactive for pre-school children. The first tour "A Musical Rumpus" Fairy Queen in the Forest was held in six libraries in November 2012. The performance for 0 to 2 year olds was well attended and received very positive feedback from the families involved and from the Head of the Community Music Service. The second piece Musical Rumpus: Mudlark Dances will be toured around the borough in July 2013 again preceded with training for library staff in delivering sessions using a range of musical instruments and props. Library staff are already using the techniques from the training to make rhyme and story sessions more engaging for young audiences.
